JANESVILLE FAIR BOARD DECIDES TO DOUBLE PRESENT FACILITIES FOR CATTLE EXHIBITS.

MUCH STOCK EXPECTED

Pig Raising Contest Under Auspices of Rock County Breeders Will Be Feature.—Other Details of Fair Arranged.

Members of the Janesville Park association at their meeting held last evening at the Gazette library, completed plans for a doubling of the capacity of the cattle shed, through the erection of a large addition, decided to conduct a pig contest in connection with the Rock County Live Stock Breeders' and Rock County Bankers' associations and finished a long list of other business of more or less importance. They decided to drop the baby beef contest because of lack of interest due to a late start with the contest.

The big addition to the cattle shed calls for buildings which will have sixty-two stalls for exhibits, doubling its present capacity and permitting the showing of one hundred and twenty-two head of cattle at one time. The building cost was awarded to Ford, Boos and School.

See Good Investment.

Members of the board decided to appropriate money for this expenditure after careful study of conditions prevalent during the fair given by the association. In both instances the cattle exhibits have been so great that it has been found necessary to expend large sums for tents and this expense, together with that of temporary stalls, etc., has heretofore been a financial leak of no small proportion. The board now figures that with the two years of the shed doubled, it will more than pay for itself within a few weeks.

More stock than ever is promised for this year. While the foot and mouth disease provided for by the exhibitors and to the fair board in 1915, results of a big array of fine cattle and other stock last year is indicative of even a great showing in 1916. The board has made special efforts to work up these departments and are making trips continually about this section of the country, interesting stock breeders and farmers who have not previously showed their blue ribbon winners at the big Janesville fair.

The Pig Contest.

The board decided to hold the pig contest for Rock county boys and girls and liberal cash prizes are to be awarded. The contest will be directed by the Rock County Live Stock Breeders' association. The board's association of the county have appropriated a large sum of money for the competition and the fair board promised to hold it under their auspices with the understanding that the board would appropriate a sum, in addition to that of the bankers, sufficient to carry on the contest, with the understanding that the contest judging and it close would come at the Janesville fair.

Prizes will be awarded on the four foremost breeds in this section. Five of these will be for stock breeds, while the fifth will be for grade. All rules have not been made yet, but these are to be announced in the near future. Must have been dropped after March 1st.

Premium Lists Ready Soon.

Secretary Harry O. Nowlan reported to the board for the premium list committee. Mr. Nowlan said that insofar as the lists in themselves were concerned they were finished and the committee was only held back in delivering the entire copy for the book to the printers through the delay of a number of advertisers who to date had not given the committee their advertising copy.

Providing this advertising matter is secured immediately, the printers have promised to have the list ready for delivery by May first, the time the board wishes to have them for distribution to farmers and other interested people.

W. N. More, who several weeks ago was in Chicago on a business trip and at that time found considerable interest manifested in the Janesville fair by Chicago live stock commission men, to the extent that without solicitation, gave a number of full page advertisements for their houses, reported that he received several more offers to take advertising space from other men in the commission business. Members of the board hold this as a good omen and regard it as an excellent advertising feature and also one to show the extent to which the local fair is known about the country.

Best Judges Secured.

With the receipt of a letter by Secretary Nowlan to today from Edward A. Baxter of Pawnee, Ill., the full list of judges for the stock department has been completed. This list is made up of men who are recognized as the most eminent authorities in stock judging in the central west.

Mr. Baxter will have charge of the swine department judging. He is an authority on this subject and is regarded as the best swine judge in the country.

Hugh Van Pelt of Waterloo, Ia., editor of Kimball's Dairyman, who will have charge of the dairy breed judging, needs no introduction to Janesville fair exhibitors and patrons who are more or less conversant and interested in dairy cattle. Mr. Van Pelt has been secured to officiate here again after a constant campaign conducted by the fair board since the time the fair closed in 1915. At first it was doubtful if Mr. Van Pelt would come and as a result it was permitted to make his own terms.

George Hutton of the agricultural department of the University of Wisconsin will judge the horse department. Mr. Hutton is an assistant to Prof. Alexander of the university and is regarded as an authority on horses to the extent of that which Mr. Alexander enjoys, although perhaps not so extensively known through the west as Prof. Alexander.

In the sheep department will be another university professor. This is F. Klienheing.

In addition to the free tradeville acts already contracted for, the board proposes to have one or two more attractions of the highest class obtainable. One of these which the board is attempting to secure is a quartet of Hawaiian players and singers, all women. They are now making a tour of the country and providing in this section during fair time, the board will bring them to Janesville. It is not definitely known if they can be secured, but if there is any possibility, the board plans on making a contract at any price.

Tickets for the ticket contest to be conducted by the association during the month of July are expected to arrive here in the next few weeks. More inquiries as to the nature of the contest are being received by Secretary Nowlan each week. Liberal cash prizes will be given to the winners and children or fraternal or other organizations of the country which sells the greatest number of tickets during the month of July.

Superintendent of Speed Charles Putnam, expects to have the race tracks in prime condition within eight or ten days. Horsemen are already lining up their mounts at the track, it having been placed in jogging condition about two weeks ago.

Work of cleaning the grounds has started. Minor improvements and alterations have been made upon Sunday morning when the board made its spring inspection of the park.

BOWER CITY BAND ORDERS
NEW UNIFORMS FOR SUMMER

An order for thirty uniforms was placed by the Bower City Band Thursday, to be delivered before the fair. The uniforms will be the regulation style of the A. F. of M. and are very near appearing garments.

Under the direction of Prof. W. F. Thiele and the management of the officers, the Bower City Band has been one of the best in Southern Wisconsin. The organization is planning on a series of concerts to be given at the Court House Park and the Corn Exchange during the summer. The band consists of the following members at the present time: Prof. W. F. Thiele, musical director; D. J. Drummond, president; J. Koebelin, vice president; Floyd Yeomans, secretary; Geo. W. Muenchow, treasurer; Irvin Sartell, manager; Geo. Y. Gray, Claude Fredendall, Walter Willis, Victor E. E. Bond, H. G. Shurtleff, W. V. Brunson, Chas. Gibson, Clarence Micka, G. Randall, Leo Drake, E. Tolles, Harry Cusabie, Seales, J. Christman, Ernest Stramppe, Geo. Walker, Ernest Lattin, Jno. Crow, A. C. Benkert, Rush Bern, W. V. Menzies, Carl Keller, Walter Kelms.

ELECTION OFFICIALS WILL DRAW FOUR AND SIX DOLLARS

Through a misunderstanding of the law, a mistake was made in the announcements regarding the paying of salaries to the clerks, inspectors and officers who served at the primary and spring elections. They were to draw four dollars for work at the primary and six dollars for work at the final election. In the fall elections they draw five dollars for the primary and $7.50 for the general election.

TOMAH IS CERTAIN OF GAME SATURDAY

Tomah Cardinals, Alleged State Champions, Confident of Beating Lakotas in Game Here.

Reports from Tomah indicate that they are very confident of defeating the Lakotas Cardinals in the game to be played on Saturday night at the Auditorium, thereby annexing a clear right to the title of the state. The Tomah five, reports state, have practiced during the past two weeks on a big floor for the purpose of being able to meet the Lakotas at their own game of dribbling.

No game will be played at Muscatine by the Lakotas as the Iowa champs positively refused to give the Janesville club another chance this week and their season closes Saturday. Because of this the attention of the Lakotas is centered on the Tomah contest. The team is not in the best of condition for a hard game. They need more practice to develop wind and accuracy at baskets and the players, who are home on vacation from the colleges, are taking a few hours' drill in hopes to take off the dull edges.

The Lakotas will have no easy task in beating the Tomahs. The Iowa aggregation have as good a record as the Lakotas, if not better, having fewer defeats, but they have played weaker teams than have the Lakotas. They have a couple of stars at the forward that will give Dalton and Edler trouble to hold. They are managed by McCauley, who is possessed with the idea that his five are champions of the world, but McCauley evidently never saw a real team play basketball—for instance Troy, New York. Yeager and Higgins play forward, Benjamin and Palmer and Maxwell guard.

The full lineup of the Lakotas is not certain. Edler and Dalton will play guards, Hemming center, and Atwood forward. Young and Sands will play the other forward position. It has been requested that Rev. F. H. Brigham, pastor at the Methodist church, be allowed to give a five minute address between halves of the game, and the request was granted by the managers of the Lakotas immediately. Mixing religion and basketball is something new and novel in the world, but it is a good idea to make the Lakotas believe and follow the policy of turning the other cheek to be slapped by an opponent during an exciting tilt, to say the least.

BROOKLYN DODGERS STRONG THIS YEAR

Robinson Has Old Pitchers Who, if They Produce, Should Make a Winning Team.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Brooklyn, N. Y., April 14.—Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Dodgers, has built up his fences and put himself in a position to give the fans of the city what they have craved so long—a winning team. If Rube Marquard, so long with the Giants; Larry Cheney, a star with the Cubs; Jack Chesbro and Nap Lajoie, who have been more than mere shadows of their former selves, the Dodgers will have about the strongest pitching staff in the National League, for added to these four are two pitchers who finished fourth among the twirlers last year, and Wheeler Dell, both of whom rank with the best. There is every reason to expect much of Marquard and Cheney, and even without Lajoie and Rucker Robbie is well justified.

Chief Meyers will lend experience to the catching staff, and may even prove an outstanding value to the team though he outlived his usefulness with the Giants. Then, too, Jimmy Johnston may turn out to be a factor all through the latter part of the season and finished third. It will require little improvement, then, to make up the difference.

SOUTHPAW RECRUIT TAMES THE TIGERS

Danforth, Sox Youngster, Aids Team-mates in Taming the Wild Tigers.—Cubs Lose to Reds.

Dashing Davy Danforth, a Sox recruit, won his spurs yesterday in the most acid test possible, when he assisted the rampant Detroit Tigers for the Sox, winning by a score of eight to six. The youngster is a southpaw and he made the Jennings crew like his off-side slams and wrinkle ball, although they "made" the recruit with all possible force.

He pitched a cool, deliberate game and went through the test of nerve without faltering, although they hit the southpaw slant and often. The Chicago swatters got their safe lead in the third when they pounded home three, when Eddie Collins knocked out a three, the Sox walloped with two. The Tigers were weak until the ninth, when Cobb got up on his dignity and slugged out a two base fly that landed safe and all in all five runs were scored during the rally, giving the Sox a bad case.

The Cincinnati Reds turned on the Cubs Thursday and administered a trouncing by the score of eight to three. The Reds played a whale of a game and the Cubs looked and played like cubs. The Herzogs got thirteen safe blows off Vaughn and Packard. In the second inning Vaughn yielded four runs, a couple of stars at the forward that will give Dalton and Edler trouble to hold. They are managed by McCauley, who is possessed with the idea that his five are champions of the world, but McCauley evidently never saw a real team play basketball—for instance Troy, New York. Yeager and Higgins play forward, Benjamin and Palmer and Maxwell guard.

Adams allowed St. Louis to hit, and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat St. Louis four to nothing, as St. Louis did not get a man past first base.

INDIANAPOLIS AMATEUR BASEBALL SEASON WILL OPEN ON APRIL 22

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Indianapolis, April 14.—The opening of the Indianapolis Amateur Baseball association will be marked by a big parade to be held Saturday, April 22, according to plans now under way. All of the teams in the amateur association will turn out in uniform and participate in the parade, which will end at Washington park, where the amateurs will be the guests of J. C. McGill, owner of the Indianapolis American association club, at the game.

The amateur playing season is set to begin Saturday and Sunday, April 23 and 24, and it is proposed to have the official closing of the various leagues on Aug. 4 and 5. This has been decided upon so that the inter-league series can be arranged to have the final game for the city championship played on Labor day.

LOCAL BOWLERS AGAIN IN LIGHT AT BELOIT

Miller's No. 1 Five Get in Second Place Down at the Beloit Tournament Last Night.

Janesville bowlers are likely to make a clean sweep down at the Beloit tournament, as last night the Miller No. 1 five topped over 2,600 of the sticks. Baumann's Colts still stand in first place, and Miller's No. 1 bunch are in second. The Odd Five, from the Line City, are in third place, and Miller's Regulars will probably get the fourth prize money.

Last night Miller's bunch started off with 896 pins in the first event and in the second did a little better and got 927. In the last event they fell down a little bit and secured 870. The All Stars also competed in the tourney last night but failed to do much. In the three events they hit a total of 2,415 pins.

Many of the local bowlers are planning to enter the tournament at Madison, which will begin April twenty-fifth and end May first.

FOUR THOUSAND SKAT PLAYERS IN TOURNAMENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Milwaukee, Wis., April 14.—At least 4,000 skat players are expected to take part in the national skat tournament to be held in Milwaukee July 8, 9 and 10. Chicago is expected to send the biggest delegation. Other delegations of players are expected from practically every big city in Wisconsin and a number of cities in Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and New York. Milwaukee has had the honor of conducting the congress four times.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

The hitting of one Roger Peckinpaugh, former member of the Cleveland club, is one of the outstanding features of the Yankees' training trip, Gotham scribes say. Roger has always been a weak hitter. He has been clouting the pill around 400, or course he'll drop from that pace, but it indicates his hitting has improved.

Pitcher Earl Moseley of the Cincinnati Reds says that all the dope hung on Beny Kauff, which makes him look large around the forehead, is bunk. "During an entire season I roomed with Kauff and I never saw a better, kinder, more obliging little fellow."

Smiling Bill Donovan related an incident of the training trip which shows how high hopes may be often dashed. Headlong into the grove at Huntsville, Ala., an offer of $100 was made by the local association to any Yankee who hit over the fence. Knowing that in small towns the ball parks were generally handbox affairs, Baker, Pipp and other sluggers on the club had the kale already deposited and drawing 4 per cent. The limit in the P. G. that forenoon was raised from 25 to 50 on the strength of the extra revenue at hand. On reaching the ball park, the astounded players discovered the same had been set for a 100-acre field, where the nearest fence was over 800 yards away.

Clarence Walker, new Red Sox outfielder, is a pretty even hitter, for his average in the minor leagues is only twelve points higher than his percentage in the majors. The latest addition to the Red Sox, in 462 games in the American league, cracked out 342 hits for a record of .282, while during the 301 combats he played in the hinter land he delivered 351 safe blows for a stick credit of .294.

A syndicated article says that John J. McGraw was born at Truxton, N. Y., April 7, 1833. Now we realize what a wonder John must have been. At the tender age of ten he secured a position with the Baltimore Orioles, which, according to the article, was a star of gorgeous magnitude; when only twelve, he hit near 400; at the age of sixteen he became a big league manager, and when only twenty-one he led the Giants to a flag! McGraw, by the way, is forty-two years old.

The jinx of illness seems to pursue the captains of the University of Pittsburgh track teams. The operation for appendicitis recently undergone by Captain McMaster of the 1916 track and field outfit has forced him to quit athletics for this year. His loss will be a severe blow to Pittsburgh's chances. Marshall, 321 captain, and Scott, leader of 1915, both were compelled to give up the sport on account of illness. In every case, the captain was a university record holder. Marshall excelled in the half mile and Scott held the title in both hurdle events. McMaster's work at the vault was the best ever done at Pitt.

Billy Sullivan, who is coaching Jennings' pitchers, is tipping the dopesters to keep an eye on Catcher Ed Garrity of Washington, who is to make his debut with the Senators.

"Garrity is sure to make good with Washington," said Sullivan recently. "He not only is a very clever backstop, but he is a severe blow to the hard and he also is fast on his feet. Garrity needs only a little major league experience to make him one at Pitt."

"SPEAR HEAD" AN OLD TIME FAVORITE

The Most Popular Chew for a Third of a Century

PURE, RICH, FRUITY-SWEET

The man who chews gets by far the most wholesome enjoyment and satisfaction out of tobacco, especially if he chews plug tobacco. The rich juices of the leaf are retained in good plugs better than in any other form.

For more than a generation Spear Head has held first place as the favorite high-grade plug chewing tobacco.

This unique distinction is due solely to the wonderful quality and flavor of Spear Head—the richest, mellowest, tastiest chew in the world.

Spear Head is the choicest of all red Burley, hand-stemmed and made in mellow-sweet plugs in a perfectly clean, most sanitary factory.

You can't chew the flavor out of Spear Head, because it's a part of the tobacco. That rich, ripe red Burley taste keeps on pleasing you as long as you keep on chewing.

Chew Spear Head and you'll be chewing the purest and most satisfying tobacco that it's possible to make. In 5c and 10c cuts.

Floors that will stand hard usage

For floors that are subjected to the constant tread of many feet—in halls, in offices, in school houses and in churches—we recommend the perfect floor varnish—

DEVORE MARBLE FLOOR FINISH

It is the floor varnish without a fault. Put it on wood floors and we'll guarantee that it will give them a marble-like surface that resists wear and tear as no other varnish will.

It preserves indefinitely the natural beauty of the wood. In clear, dry weather it will dry in 24 hours. To clean floors varnished with Marble Floor Finish merely apply a little DEVORE Polishing Oil according to simple directions. That's all the "scrubbing" they need. No mops and water and elbow grease! We know Devore Marble Floor Finish will give you satisfaction. And the guarantee of purity is on every can.

NEWS NOTES from McTAVELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

Dorothy Gish, who won many new friends in her latest play, "Betty of Greystone," will be seen again in the very near future in "Little Men's Romance." Owen Moore, Mary Pickford's husband, plays opposite her. An unusually large supporting company includes Margaret Marsh, E. J. Tierney, Fred J. Butler, Robert Lawler and James O'Shea.

Right on the heels of her sister comes Lillian Gish as a young Russian girl in "Sold for Marriage." The action takes the players from Russia to America and requires the services in support of the star of Frank Bennett, Walter Long, A. D. Sears, Pearl Elmore and many others.

PROBABLY SHE ONLY WORE A YARD OF FABRIC

Publicity informs us that Dorothy Green in her first picture wears "a purple silk gown that cost $35 and had this first time we've heard of dresses being priced according to their length and when you consider where the new style dresses begin and end the cost of the dress isn't so appalling after all."

A further description of the dress says: "It is an evening gown shot with silver in lightning strokes and was fashioned with tulle from the shoulders." Sounds as though Dorothy ought to carry burglar, fire, life and health insurance.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN "MOLLY MAKE-BELIEVE"

Marguerite Clark is the star of "Molly Make-Believe," an adaptation of the story and book by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott which, after appearing as a serial in one of the big national magazines, was issued in book form and has been one of the most popular gift books ever since.

Though the story centers around a series of letters, when the film makes its appearance soon it will be found that it has been converted into a romantic photoplay by the star, director and cast. J. Searle Dawley directed the photoplay.

As movie villains are supposed to be more dangerous than real ones, Stuart Holmes, the William Fox star, had a hard time keeping his complexion light while working in Jamaica for four months. He solved it by using a "shellac complexion."

THE GIRL AND THE GAME ...

Copyright 1915 by Frank H. Spearman.

With the two railroad men encouraging them, the men worked hard to get through the obstruction in front of them. They toiled unrelentingly, knowing how every hour within their prison would lessen their chances for life. One of the men, exhausted by the labor, picked up a water canteen. It was broken. A canvas was made of the situation and it was found they had no water. Gloom settled for a time on them. Thereafter, questioning the foreman carefully, Rhineland, picked a place where the experienced miner thought they might, with a little work, get through and turned to the men. "Dynamite through this wall," he said.

The men began. The moment the blast was ready, it was set off and they were back again at their drills preparing for the next. Working thus with frenzied energy, they tore great holes into the tunnel's side, but seemingly with no hopeful result. And the work was beginning to tell on them. By the time they had gotten what they hoped might be the final shot ready, Rhineland and the miners—all in the tunnel except Storm—were on the verge of collapse.

Nerved to a final effort by the hope of life, the shot was fired. No ray of daylight greeted their straining eyes as the smoke thinned away. The air, now foul, had so overcome them that few could crawl forward to examine the shattered wall. One grizzled fellow, sturdier than his mates, staggered to it. He looked for a moment at the rock and cried out. Animated by fresh hope, the exhausted men responded by dragging themselves to him.

The blast had not given them the hoped-for avenue of escape. But broadly lined across the jagged surface now dislodged, they saw staring at them as if in mockery of their state, the lost vein, the lead of precious quartz again before them. Untold riches confronted them.

Seagru, in his room, had heard the distant report of the explosion, but he had been drinking of late and his nerves were on edge.

He strode up and down the room revolving in his mind the situation of the men imprisoned within the big tunnel.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, April 14, 1876.—A slight fall of snow made its appearance this morning. It was limited and continued for a few minutes.

The common council will meet tonight and will canvass the city votes. As some are at the hospital here, there is considerable interest in the result.

There will be a race on the track at the fair grounds in this city May tenth—good, bad and ugly—between the horses owned by Robert Edlison of this city and Henry Whitaker of Fulton for a hundred dollar bet.

LITTLE MEXICAN BOY CAPTURED AFTER RAID, NOW WANTS TO BE A YANKEE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Deming, N. M., April 14.—Little Jesus Paz is at the hospital here with his left leg amputated at the hip. Today it was announced that he will have a new leg, the gift of Americans at Deming.

When Villa raided Columbus, Jesus was with his bandit father. He was told to hold his father's horse. The twelve-year-old lad did so until an American bullet shattered his leg. As he dropped the Villa band turned and fled.

Jesus said today: "I thought Americans killed everybody; they captured me and I was afraid. I crawled away and hid in the brush. After a while a big soldier came and got me. He was good to me. They had to cut off my leg, but it didn't hurt much. Now I want to stay here and be a real American." Deming folk will give the boy a chance.

such as stout old ladies use to stimulate youth.

Mary Fuller, Universal Heights star, has to do a scene with eight babies in the picture entitled "Little Babies." That's rather a lot of babies for an unmarried girl to mother, but Miss Fuller went at it with gritted teeth and plenty of milk bottles, and came through with not an infant crying.

nel. He knew enough of the mine to understand perfectly the peril of their position and the necessity of a quick rescue if their lives were to be saved. Further than this, he charged his mind with nothing of responsibility; indeed, he would hardly have walked across the street to save one of the imperiled men. Yet, a strangely persistent curiosity moved him to want to know more of the fate of those who were thus struggling for their lives.

A decanter stood on the buffet and he turned to it. While he poured brandy into a glass, he heard a strange noise in an adjoining room—a sound as if of a miner's doublejack. It startled him unpleasantly. He called to his servant and the man, thus abruptly summoned, came quickly, carrying an ice pick.

"What's that noise? What are you doing?" demanded Seagru, harshly. The man in a half-frightened way began to laugh. "Only picking a little ice, sir," he said, apologetically. Seagru, without answering, snatched the ice pick from his hand. "Give me my hat and coat," he exclaimed with anger. And as the man hurriedly produced them, he added curiously: "Get out." And serving himself, he made ready to start for the mine.

Attempt at attempt on the part of Rhineland, Storm and the miners to open a way of freedom was failing, and overcome by the foul air, the men, one after another, had sunk down from exhaustion.

Outside, the engine and little train had brought Helen and the relief and the men were running up the slope. The few men attacking the face of the cave-in, now greatly re-enforced, worked with desperate energy at the fallen rock. The cool-headed foreman assumed leadership and organized the men so that no energy should be wasted and slowly but steadily the willing workers ate a hole into the mass of splintered rock before them.

In the tunnel where Rhineland and his stupefied companions lay in varying stages of distress and despair, Storm heard at length the sound of the work on the other side of the wall. He shouted feebly to his companions. "They're coming!" he cried. "Hang on, boys. Got your heads close up here. There's a little air seeping in."

Rhineland, in spite of the fact that he was among the oldest of those caught in the horrible trap, was standing the strain better than most of them. He, in his turn, encouraged the others not to give up and was the first to hear a call coming through the cave-in. He answered it with all the strength he could summon.

PLENTY OF BUTTONS ON SPRING CLOTHES

And Watch the Husbands Express Their Opinion of the Style in Most Forceful Manner.

(By Margaret Mason.)

"Alack alack!! I see your back," the wretched husband cried; "Again I will be on the rack. 'Twill take profanity and knock To fasten up my bride."

New York, April 14.—Or the flowers that bloom in the spring train and the dresses that hook up the back are a simultaneous debut. Black and white stripes, running around for those as can wear 'em and running up and down for those who can't are very much in the running to furnish range from pin stripes to inch wide bands.

White hose embroidered in black up the instep or the sides of the ankle are good and all delicate tints of flesh green, maize and baby blue will be popular.

The white kid shoe, both high and low, is in its heyday and low plain pumps and slippers of softest pearl gray kid, beige and all delicate pastels tints to go with the fluffy summer silks and organdies are to be featured on all the best feet.

The patent kid and black satin slippers will be greatly in demand also with light colored hosiery because of the pronounced Spanish flavor of our present dressing.

Take nine inches of a skirt and then add two cuts (not cube) feet and the answer to this sartorial sum is SOME GIRL.

With the full skirts and tight bodices and bell sleeves of the moment the back fastening really fits like the general scheme of things most effectively and while in some instances frocks may make a feature of buttoning straight down the front, you will find the very newest and smartest wrinkle is to do your buttoning up behind.

You must look to your feet this summer as assiduously as you did in the winter, for others will surely look there and, looking once it is up to you whether they will care to look again.

The short full skirt, hinting of hoops and crinoline, are first aids to a generous display of silken hose and shoes of kid and a smart and also a snappy and a snappy and a snappy.

All black stockings will be glimpsed but rarely but black with white will be on many a well turned limb and will oblige many a well turned head. Black and white stripes, running around for those as can wear 'em and running up and down for those who can't are very much in the running to furnish range from pin stripes to inch wide bands.

White hose embroidered in black up the instep or the sides of the ankle are good and all delicate tints of flesh green, maize and baby blue will be popular.

The white kid shoe, both high and low, is in its heyday and low plain pumps and slippers of softest pearl gray kid, beige and all delicate pastels tints to go with the fluffy summer silks and organdies are to be featured on all the best feet.

The patent kid and black satin slippers will be greatly in demand also with light colored hosiery because of the pronounced Spanish flavor of our present dressing.

Take nine inches of a skirt and then add two cuts (not cube) feet and the answer to this sartorial sum is SOME GIRL.

CALIFORNIA JAPANESE RETURN BETTER BRIDES FROM THE HOMETLAND

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, April 14.—Japanese young men resident in California are returning to Japan in increasing numbers to get brides and the old-time custom of choosing wives by photograph is rapidly becoming extinct. The former system developed many evils, and the Japanese authorities who are working for the welfare of Japanese in the United States have been doing all possible to have it abolished. Fifty young men returned to the United States a few days ago with brides selected after a brief period of courtship in the fatherland.

Matrimonial agencies have done much to hasten the fall of this system. It was found that even the camera can be made to tell falsehoods and the agencies are charged with having taken advantage of this. Expectant bridegrooms are said to have been very disabused when the originals of some of the photographs have arrived in California. Gradually the Japanese on the Pacific coast have found that it pays best to make the selection first hand and have largely discarded the photograph method.

Kazo Fukasai, a leader among the Japanese at San Francisco, who came to Japan with a group of one hundred fellow countrymen called the "Buddhist Home Country Visiting Party" explained that although his friends returned to Japan to get brides during the coronation period they also came to seek wives on the spot. He said the "picture marriages" frequently proved unsatisfactory.

One of the strongest advocates of reform is Y. Numano, until recent consul general at San Francisco. After consulting with the foreign office here, he issued an order prohibiting Japanese men from marrying on the strength of pictures unless they deposited $800 in an American bank.

Can you finish this picture? Complete the picture by drawing a line through the dots. Begin at No. 1 and take them numerically.

within three successive years. Since the issue of the order the picture bride system has been doomed for any Japanese who wished to marry and she had $800 in his possession was more likely to come to Japan to look for a wife.

More Japanese tourists visited Japan last year than ever before and the decline of the picture-bride system had a great deal to do with this. Ever more would have come had there been enough steamships on the Pacific to bring all over that applied for passage. A special appeal was made at one time to S. Asano, president of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, asking him to send a special ship to Honolulu, to carry many Japanese country. This appeal could not be granted and in connection with the coronation more than 2,000 Japanese were disappointed in Honolulu alone. It is believed that many of them wished to select wives during their visit here.

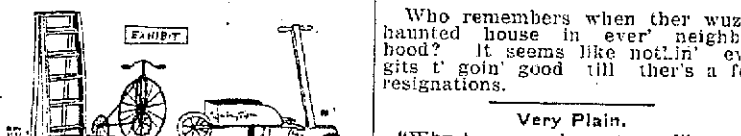

Who remembers when they wuz a haunted house in ever neighborhood? It seems like notin' ever sits 't gon' good till there's a few resignations.

SCOTCH COMEDIAN SINGS NEW SONGS

Harry Lauder, International Star, Appears at Myers Theatre and Proves a Delightful Entertainer.

There was a gathering of the clans at Myers Theatre yesterday afternoon. What was it all about? Ye see, mon, the wee Lauder, the Harry Lauder, was there and when he comes to town the Scots foregather at the theatre.

Mr. Lauder appeared in a number of new songs, everyone a big hit. What made the Lauder songs so popular is their peculiar catchy lilt and the simplicity of the lyrics which makes audience take up the songs with Lauder and his authors become old friends on the moment.

In addition to the appearance of this great entertainer, there was offered a great feature bill of international vaudeville acts, including the Al Gled Troupe of sixteen Persian dancers, acrobats and comedians in glimpses of the far east. Mlle. Lucille and her talking Cockatoo, Selwyn Driver was seen in a humorous and novel piano specialty; Dave Generoso and Isabella Jason gave a series of excellent dances and Albert Donnelly gave some humorous humor in the shadowgraph art.

Withal it was an unusually good entertainment.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 45.

White Bread, Biscuits, Crackers, Farina, Refined Breakfast Foods, Refined Cereals, Macaroni, Corn Starch, Polished Rice, Mashed Potatoes, Refined Cereals, and Sugars of Every Kind Are Acid Producers—Such Acid-Forming Foods, Unless Accompanied by the Bases Natural to Them, Are Schind Most Preventable Diseases.

It has been clearly established that under certain kinds of diet, containing actually twice the number of calories figured by the scientists to be necessary to sustain the body, the human animal fed on such a diet perishes.

It has also begun to dawn upon the scientific mind that there is a balance between the acid and base-forming elements of food and that the acid content of food and the acid content of mineral content of food are almost entirely unimportant, in fact, all the most important of food factors.

Sherman and Mettler reported in May, 1912, as a result of experiments conducted in the laboratories of Columbia university, their estimate of the acid and base-forming elements of the food and the acid content of the mineral content of the food. They found that the acid content of the food, including fish, showed a decided preponderance of acid-forming elements. The lean flesh of different animals, whether young or mature, showed the same species, showed similar results.

The white of eggs was found to be an acid-former. Milk, on the contrary, showed a slight preponderance of base-forming elements. Vegetables and fruits showed a marked preponderance of base-forming elements.

Experiments of several days duration upon healthy men showed that the foods which showed a preponderance of acid-forming elements were substituted for foods with base-forming elements the increase of ammonia excretion in the urine accounted only for one-fourth to one-third of the acid involved.

The sulphates and phosphates in the urine, which were evidences of the fact that the dangerous sulphuric acid and phosphoric acid in the body had been neutralized, they could have been, were not considered.

Sherman and Mettler did succeed, however, in stampeding the self-satisfied scientists, who were quite content to let the world think they knew all that was to be known about food, and that the proper way to attack all the diseases in the world was to ingest the proper amount of food, and that the proper way to use the right kind of food was to eat it.

It has never occurred to these scientists that white bread, biscuits, crackers, farina, refined breakfast foods, polished rice, corn meal, corn starch, polished rice, mashed potatoes, and refined cereals and sugars of every kind are acid producers, and that their constant appearance on the tables of the nation is rapidly bringing about a national condition of acidosis.

Pure proteins, pure carbohydrates, and pure fats, while containing all the elements of the food from which they are derived, retain only a minimum of the chemical agents, reagents, and base-forming substances necessary to the healthy activity of the organs of digestion, assimilation, and elimination. All the consumed must have its proper vegetable bases attached. So also with all forms of carbohydrates, yet these bases are not to the American people in large measure.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
In care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen and am not very pretty. My girl friends all think I am quite jolly, but I don't seem popular with the boys here at all. When I go to visit in other cities I am popular with the boys. I am not in this city. Can you advise me how to become popular? All the other girls have beaux and I want one too.

WORRIED.

Dress as attractively as you can and appear interested. The girl who always seems to be having a good time is much more popular than the one who looks bored. Keep well informed about current events so that you will understand what people are talking about and can enter into the conversation. Start the average boy on the subject of the Mexican situation and whether Col. Roosevelt will be nominated, and if you are able to keep up your end of the conversation he will think you are fine. If you have the art of drawing a boy out on the subject of himself or things that interest him, you ought to be popular.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls sixteen years old.

(1) When one of us is with her boy friend he always says mean things about the other one which she does not like. What should she say to him?

(2) Would it be all right for one of us to go to her boy friend's house if she goes to see his sister?

(3) Is it all right for us to go out of the city to see our boy friends if their other brothers and sisters and the servants are there, but the parents are away?

(4) If a boy asks for a date is it all right to ask him to bring a friend for your chum? What should you say if he refuses?

(5) We like a boy who goes with a certain girl. How can we gain his friendship?

(6) Is it proper for us to go to a party alone at night with our boy friends?

(7) If we have a date is it all right to take a long walk?

MUTT AND JEFF.

(1) She should say, "She is a friend of mine and I do not care to discuss her." (2) If his sister invites her it would be all right. (3) No, it would not be all right. (4) It is all right to ask a boy to bring a friend, but if he refuses the girl should be pleasant about it and not appear annoyed. She should say, "Oh, all right." (5) I think it contemptible for a girl to try to make a boy like her when he all ready shows his preference for another girl. (6) Girls of sixteen should not go motoring with boys at night unchaperoned. (7) Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young lady in the fourth year of high school and I am in an amateur play to be given by the class. There is another person in this play who is a friend of mine and was frequently taken me home from class. There is a great deal of meddling in our high school and this friend's brother seems curious and is always trying to make trouble. What can I do?

(2) There are two young gentlemen who desire my company. I think a great deal of one, but the other is the son of a trustee and I wish to teach school. What shall I do?

(1) If you feel that you are doing nothing that can be justly criticized, disregard gossip. (2) What not go with both of the young men? If you were considering marriage you would naturally choose the man you loved regardless of getting a teacher's appointment. You could go with the trustee's son would be just as apt to treat the father unfavorably as favorably. Be independent.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

DO CHILDREN OUTGROW SQUINT?

Slight squint, even though the eyes seem almost straight, one eye is generally defective. It has lost the power of focusing accurately; the child is handicapped by the lack of binocular vision. The sight of the eyes that has crossed is gone practically; the vision is compensated by that of the yabbi's eye—there is a field of vision, but no fine visual perception.

Wherefore it is obvious that even the slightest evidence of squint or crossed-eye should be heeded and the child placed under the supervision of a good oculist whom the family doctor recommends. Conservation of vision is one of the first duties of conscientious parents. No vicious notion of "outgrowing" squint should be entertained for a moment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Youngest Doctor Did It.

I wrote you some time ago, you may remember. I had tried seven different doctors without obtaining any relief from a severe pain in my back and lameness. I had no idea of a lot of so-called "kidney" medicine, but two doctors found the uric acid. You advised me to stick to my doctor who happened to be the youngest man in our community. He

You can't always make everything "just so." Sometimes you will get in more shortening than usual or make the batter a little thin; or it may not be convenient to put a cake in the oven the moment it is mixed; or your oven may not bake evenly and it is necessary to turn the pan around—none of these little uncertainties make the slightest difference in results if you use came the second time, put a plaster jacket (a plaster bandage) on me (two of them), and that was the end of my trouble. Hereafter I'll have the young doctors for mine.

Answer—A doctor may be young at eighty, and an old dog at twenty-five. It all depends upon his mental and physical and his training. It just happened that the young doctor was an active member of the medical society—which made us sure he would give satisfaction.

Still Lots of Smoke

If a child in a schoolroom comes down with scarlet fever, and the health officer sends a number of arm-aldehyde candles in the schoolroom, the next night, does that go away with the danger to other children in the schoolroom?

Answer—Certainly not. If any other children have been infected (through contact with the disease of the first child), the fumigation cannot alter the fact. In plain words, such fumigation is a waste of time, money and, perhaps, opportunity. The first child should be isolated, and the schoolroom closed for a week, to allow any secondary cases to be recognized.

Household Hints

SEASONING ROAST TURKEY.

Everyone knows how difficult it is to get enough seasoning in the breast of turkey or chicken to be roasted. When preparing a turkey, insert the finger between the flesh and skin and separate them, over the breast and fill the cavity thus made with salt, pepper, and a little onion. The meat will be much more delicious, and perfectly seasoned.

DREAMLAND.

One-half pound cream cheese beaten with two tablespoons of chopped nuts, one teaspoon finely chopped celery, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, for dreamland sandwiches. Mix well and moisten with whipped cream, enough to make thin enough to spread. Cut thin slices of bread and with a baking powder can cut each sandwich into two crescents. These are dreamy little sandwiches.

REMOVES "SQUEAK."

To take squeaking out of new shoes take a tallow of some sort, a big piece of tallow, and pour a little linseed oil in this over night, and in the morning you will find that they not only do not make any more noise, but the oil has made the soles impervious to dampness as well.

COSMETICS FOR TOILET TABLE.

Most sensible girls keep a lot of cosmetics and drugs in their toilet table. There are a few articles which are always in a convenient place. An old glass stopped bottle containing alcohol, camphor, or vaseline are among some of the necessities.

When the breath is not sweet, a delightful wash of water and camphor and water may be used to good advantage.

Powdered alum applied to a fever sore will prevent it from becoming unsightly and noticeable.

Stings from insects or eruptions can be subdued by alcohol. Alcohol used occasionally as a face wash will be found very beneficial, as it absorbs all excess grease and dirt imbedded in the pores and otherwise hard to remove. Care must be taken, as too much will be injurious to the skin.

Scalded hands, a few grains of alum in tepid water will relieve annoyance. For those whose feet perspire a few drops of sulphuric acid in the water will be beneficial.

Great care should be exercised in selecting the toilet soap. Many cases the perfume is simply a disguise for poor quality. A good quality of toilet soap is always preferable. Of course, one may rely on scented soap from high class manufacturers, but it costs more than it is worth. In addition to the bath soap white castile should be kept for washing the hair.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Thicken Sauces or Gravy—Make holes in a large baking powder can with a nail; fill with flour and keep in warming closet or range. Shake it into any sauce or gravy which requires thickening. Will not lump and saves time.

Bluing Hint—If you use liquid bluing, put small quill in cork of bluing bottle, in danger of getting bluing on the fingers and no dust could get in. Formula for bluing: One ounce Prussian blue, one-fourth ounce oxalic acid (crystals) three pints soft water. Shake several times the day you make it.

THE TABLE.

Salmon Croquettes—One can salmon, one-half cup rice, boiled, parsley, one egg, salt and pepper, and cracker crumbs. Drain all liquid off a can of salmon, add one-half cup of rice, one egg well beaten, a little parsley and salt and pepper. Form in shape of croquettes and roll in cracker crumbs, place in a well buttered pan and brown in the oven.

Fish Croquettes (six or eight croquettes according to size)—Stir one tablespoon butter and one of flour together; add two-thirds cups of milk, boil up once, season with salt and pepper, remove from fire and stir in a skimmer, lay on brown paper a moment. They are excellent. The finer the bread crumbs the more sure one is of success.

Olive Tells Neil the Details of the Finding of the Baby.

"Neil!" called Olive over the phone. "We have found the baby! Get your things on. We will drive by in a few minutes on our way to Burleigh."

"Hurrah!" shouted Neil as she hung up the receiver.

"Tell me all you know," Neil demanded excitedly a few minutes later as they flew over the road.

"Mr. Cane called up about ten minutes before we started. You can believe I did not take us long to get off when he told us we could get the baby if we came to Burleigh. While Gaylord was getting the baby, I talked to him. Today he followed Anna Ellison when she started across the fields. He saw him and turned back. He saw him, however, and followed it up. He found a path in the woods and followed it and came to a house away from everywhere. He knocked, but could get no response. He was convinced that someone lived there and that it might be the hiding place of the baby. He climbed a tree and watched the house. Suddenly after a while a woman came out with a little child. That was enough. He crept through the woods and suddenly appeared before her. He talked with her a few minutes and then came spring the question: 'Where are the clothes the baby came in?' She tried to act surprised, but of course he soon had the baby in her own clothes. He said they were beautifully laundered—she does washings for people of Burleigh. On the way to Burleigh she told him how she happened to keep the child. You know Anna had a great deal of liberty as she was so little trouble. She wandered to this house in the woods and struck up a sort of friendship with the woman.

"Probably she had just this thing in mind all the time," interrupted Neil.

Possibly. Who knows? She told the woman that she was perfect. She could appear as you know. She said her husband was tired of her and had put her in the asylum to rid of her; that he had taken her baby away from her and had married again. Finally she got the woman's sympathy so aroused that she consented to keep the child until such time as Mrs. Ellison's friends would take it and get her out of the asylum so she could have her baby for her own.

"Well, what do you think of that?" exploded Neil. "That woman is equal to anything!"

"Yes, indeed! And she gave her her diamond engagement ring as pay for caring for the child."

"How could she have kept possession of that at the poor farm?" asked Neil.

"Heaven only knows. If she made up her mind to keep the ring, she would find a way to do it. You know that."

"Yes, but she was brought there half-conscious," objected Neil.

"Well, that is all I know about it. I mean to ask the superintendent about it," replied Olive.

"Does she know the baby was found?" was Neil's next question.

"Not yet. They went straight to Burleigh, and are waiting for us there."

"We are nearly there. You will soon have your baby in your arms. I am so glad I shall be able to see you," Neil hugged Olive in excess of joy.

LIES AND LIES.

"Know thyself; presume not to go to scan. The proper study of mankind is man."—Pope.

"All men are wicked," someone said to me the other day.

"Not equally wicked," I protested. "I don't know about that," he persisted. "A lie is a lie, and the truth is the truth, and there's no middle ground."

Perhaps he's right, there. I'm not sure, but even if there is no middle ground between a lie and the truth, I am sure that there are a great many varieties of lies, and that had a man equally wicked, any more than any murderers are equally wicked or all gifts of money to charity equally noble. The motive and the circumstances behind a lie are important. I am inclined to think they will weigh more heavily than we have any idea of in those wonderful scales of St. Peter which can measure absolute good and evil with the same accuracy as we measure material things.

The Lie Cowardly is the Lie I Hate Most.

There is one kind of lie that personally I particularly object to; it is the kind of lie we tell to get out of a scrape. It is the lie cowardly, the mean lie. It violates that spirit of manhood which is one of the qualities I admire most.

Can you believe that St. Peter will not make any distinction between the lie cowardly and the lie kindly, that the kind we tell to keep from hurting someone's feelings is the same as the lie cowardly and the lie of self-interest?

Once in school I told a lie cowardly and the memory of it still makes me dislike myself. I would not tell a lie to get out of a scrape, but I would tell a lie to keep from hurting someone's feelings.

Most of us tell the Lie Semi-Conscious.

The semi-conscious lie is another variety. It is a lie that we tell to get out of a scrape. We put off writing a letter to a friend because we are just naturally procrastinating by temperament. We are accused of procrastination and we explain that we were waiting to send a certain piece of information to someone. As we utter the lie we find that it sounds convincing and we begin to believe it. Or perhaps we are so ill acquainted with ourselves that we believe it from the beginning. I think some people are like that. They are The Lie Pretentious is One of the Commonest.

The lie pretentious is a variety of lie that I particularly hate. I mean the kind of lie people tell to bolster up their pretensions to more worldly wealth or importance than they actually possess. The man who says he is a millionaire is twice what he really is belongs in this class of liar. An example of the lie pretentious is the woman who casually mentions well-known people in a way which gives the impression that they are her intimate friends, when in reality she is but slightly acquainted with them. Another excellent example is the case of the woman who told me she received ten dollars a night for reading. The truth of the matter was that once, some years ago, she had received ten dollars a night. Never again had she received more than five, and sometimes less.

You may have wondered wherein lies the pertinence of the quotation at the head of this talk. It is this: absolute truthfulness is a more difficult virtue to acquire than we realize. It rests upon a foundation of several other virtues, and self-knowledge is one of these.

SOME WAYS OF REDUCING THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

Meat Left-Overs and How to Serve Them.

Written for The Gazette by Nellie Maxwell, Department of Farmers' Institutes of the University of Wisconsin.

There are several requisites for a successful left-over of meat, all bone one gristle and fat should be removed. It should be first frozen, then it should be thawed in a cooking; it must appeal to the eye in appearance, not recalling its former appearance, and it should not require too much labor in preparation or too many ingredients to make it eatable. Otherwise the effort of saving is lost.

Meat from the soup stock has most of its food value left, barring the flavor of the extractives, by adding a very tasty and palatable croquette. Never repeat the same dish of left-overs, until the family has forgotten the combinations. We are prone to get weary of the same dishes, which if rearranged in other ways, with other seasonings would be most acceptable.

Ragouts, pot pies, stewards, fricassees are all made with a variety of seasonings thus changing the character of the dish. Hash minced meat, croquettes, loaves, escaloped meat, creamed meats and souffles are all made with meat. Meat and potatoes use small bits of meat with gravy.

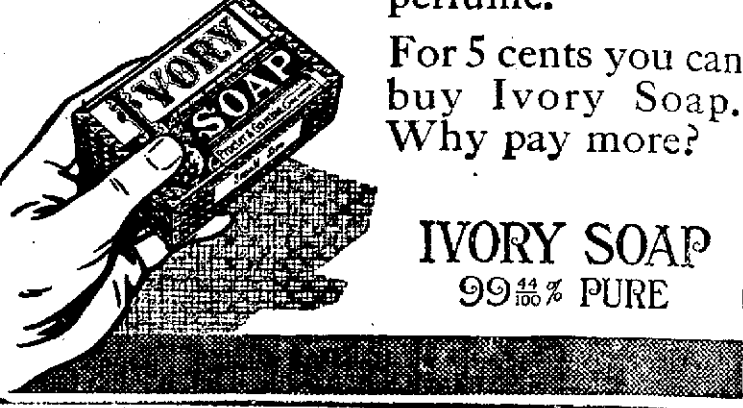

One of the best methods of reducing the meat bill is to fix on a certain sum or amount of meat to be used, then study the left-over problem, bearing in mind the requirements for a successful dish of left-overs.

Dumplings for Ragouts. Chop exceedingly fine half a pound of veal or beef steak. Beat a fourth of a cup of butter in a cream and gradually add the meat, then the yolks of two eggs well beaten, half a cup of soft bread crumbs, a grating of nutmeg, half a teaspoonful of salt and the whites of the eggs beaten dry. Mix well to a soft batter. Shape in a tablespoon and cook five minutes.

Cottage Pie. Cover the bottom of a

Roast Beef, Mexican Sauce.—There is no more delicious dish than this if it is carefully prepared. When the vegetables are in season, they may all be grown in one's own garden. Cook five minutes one onion finely chopped in two tablespoonsful of butter. Add one red and one green pepper, and one clove of garlic, finely chopped, with two tomatoes cut in pieces. Cook fifteen minutes, then add one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Lay in the slices of cold roast beef and when hot serve with the sauce.

Barbecued Lamb.—Cut cold roast lamb in slices and reheat in a sauce made by wetting two tablespoonsful of butter, adding three-fourths of a tablespoonful of vinegar, one-fourth of a cup of currant jelly, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of prepared mustard, and salt and cayenne to taste. A veal pie is a most appetizing dish. Take bits of veal, with salt pork (well cooked in small cubes) add cream and seasonings and cover with a crust; bake as usual.

Scalloped Chicken.—Butter a baking dish and arrange alternate layers of cold sliced chicken and sliced macaroni or rice. Pour over a rich sauce made of milk, cream, or chicken stock, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown. Serve hot.

At Last, Madam, the First Perfect Coffee

THESE three gentlemen have something very important to tell you about the first, perfect, uniform, rich, coffee you have ever been able to buy.

You know in the past there has never been a way by which the flavor of coffee could be determined in advance, except by mere guesswork.

This is why the same kind of coffee would sometimes suit you, and sometimes not.

We have now found the secret of uniform goodness in coffee.

It has heretofore been believed that the quality of coffee depended on the size of the coffee beans themselves.

That's why coffee has first been run through a series of different meshes to separate the beans of different sizes.

The largest sized beans were sold as coffee of the better grade.

The fact is, you were not sure of getting better flavor in your coffee all you were sure of is that you were getting coffee beans all of the same size.

Now we have shown that the quality of coffee depends not upon size, but upon the weight of the bean.

This is simply because two equal sized beans may be entirely different in flavor and body—one vigorous, aromatic, and rich in the substance that makes a superb coffee, the other insipid, perhaps overripe, bitter, or immature and imperfect.

But the heavier bean will be rich in flavor, the lighter bean will be thin for use.

This is why even in the highest priced blends of coffee, the flavor will be disappointing, the poor beans will be left in and ruin the flavor of the good ones—just because they happen to be of the same size.

So you see that the "proper blending" of coffee is not enough.

That's why Hall's Prosperity Coffee goes through the new and wonderful process of gravity-grading.

FARM ORGANIZATION SENDING OUT LETTERS

County Farm Improvement Association Sent Out Letters to Members here of Management Contest.

Active work has been started by the Rock County Farm Improvement association and letters are being sent to the members of the Rock County Farm Management contest and other farmers interested in the work of the association. Following is the contents of the letter:

"The Rock County Farm Improvement association was organized at Beloit on March 30th for the purpose of helping the farmers in this county to secure a larger income from their farms and to put Rock county at the top agriculturally. With this in view, the committee has secured a well trained, practical man, Mr. J. E. This demonstration work has been carried on very successfully in Rock county for the past two years, and has been continued again this year with over twice as many members.

"At the county meeting of those interested in farm management work, it was clearly brought out that what the Rock county farmers need to increase their incomes are better livestock, particularly dairy cows, and more alfalfa. Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulled coconut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or shampoos that eat into your scalp. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

The Dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy Drives Them Out—Ends Torture. Stomach troubles breed millions of germs that eat into your veins, cause gas pressure, indigestion, constipation, Torpid Liver, Auto-Intoxication, Yellow Jaundice, Gall Stones, Appendicitis, Cancer and Ulcers of the Stomach and Intestines, etc., etc. Thousands of sufferers have been restored by Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, among them Justine of the Supreme Court, Congressmen, Doctors, Lawyers, Bankers, Ministers, Nurses, Farmers, Mechanics—persons of every class—probably your own neighbors. Stomach troubles are due mostly to catarrhal poisons. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy removes that poison, thoroughly cleanses the system, drives out the disease breeding germs, always inflammation and ends suffering. Unlike any other remedy, No alcohol—nothing to injure you. One dose convinces. FREE book on Stomach Ailments. Write Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. “And you met him? I thought you told me you merely went down and took a look—didn't butt in?”

“I didn't—that night. But the next morning they wanted to see the valley, and I showed them the way in. Cortwright is the multimillionaire pork packer of Chicago, and he went up into the air like a lunatic over the money-making chances there were to be in this job. I didn't pay much attention to his chortlings at the time. It didn't seem remotely credible that anybody with real money to invest would plant it in the bottom of the Niquia reservoir.”

“But now you think he is going to make his bluff good?”

“That looks very much like it,” said Brouillard sourly, pointing to the letter from Washington. “That scheme is going to change the whole face of nature for us up here, Grislow. It will spell trouble right from the jump.”

“Oh, I don't know,” was the deprecating rejoinder. “It will relieve us of a lot of side-issue industries—cut 'em out and bury 'em, so far as we are concerned.”

“That part of it is all right, of course; but it won't end there; not by a hundred miles. Jobson says in that letter that the relations have got to be friendly! I'll bet anything you like that I'll have to go and read the riot act to those people before they've been twenty-four hours on their job!”

Grislow was trying the point of his mapping pen on his thumb nail. “Curious that this particular fly should drop into your pot of ointment on your birthday, wasn't it?” he remarked.

“O suffering Jehu!” grunted Brouillard regretfully. “Are you never going to forget that senseless bit of twaddle?”

“You're not giving me a chance to forget it,” said the mapmaker soberly. “You told me that night that the seven-year characteristic was changed; and you're a changed man, Victor, if ever there was one. Moreover, it began that very night—or the next morning.”

Brouillard laughed. “All of which is bad enough, you'd say, Murray; but it isn't the worst of it. I've just run up against another thing that is threatening to raise merry hell in this valley.”

“I know,” said the hydrographer slowly. “You've been having a seance with Steve Massingale. Leshington told me about it.”

“What did he tell you?” Brouillard demanded half angrily.

“Oh, nothing much; nothing to make you hot at him. He said he gathered the notion that the young seerhead was trying to bully you.”

“He was,” was the brittle admission. “See here, Grizzy.”

The thing to be seen was a small buckskin bag which, when opened, gave up a paper packet folded like a medicine powder. The paper contained a spoonful of dust and pellets of metal of a dull yellow luster.

The hydrographer drew a long breath and fingered the nuggets. “Gold—placer gold!” he exclaimed, and Brouillard nodded and went on to tell him he had come by the bag and its contents.

“Massingale had an ax to grind, of course. You may remember that Harding talked loosely about the Massingale opposition to the building of the dam. There was nothing in it. The opposition was purely personal, and it was directed against Harding himself, with Amy Massingale for the exciting cause.”

“That girl!—the elemental brute!” Grislow broke in warmly. He knew the miner's daughter fairly well by this time, and, in common with every man on the staff, not excepting the staff's chief, would have fought for her in any cause.

Brouillard nodded. “I don't know what Harding did, but Smith, the Triangle-Circle foreman, tells me that Steve was on the warpath; he told Harding when he left, last summer, that if he ever came back to Niquia, he'd come to stay—and stay dead.”

“I never did like Harding any too well,” was the hydrographer's definitive comment, and Brouillard went back to the matter of the morning's seance and its golden outcome.

“That is only a little side issue. Steve Massingale came to me this morning with a proposal that was about as cold-blooded as a slap in the face. Naturally, for good business reasons of their own, the Massingales want to see the railroad built over War Arrow pass into the Niquia. In some way Steve has found out that I stand pretty well with President Ford and the Pacific Southwestern people. His first break was to offer to incorporate the ‘Little Susan’ and to give me a block of the stock if I'd pull Ford's leg on the extension proposition.”

“Well?” queried Grislow.

“Exactly. You can imagine what I told him. Then he began to bully and pulled the club on me.”

Again Grislow's smile was jocose.

“Well, when I turned him down, young Massingale began to bluster and to say that I'd have to boost the railroad deal, whether I wanted to or not. I told him he couldn't prove it, and he said he would show me, if I'd take half an hour's walk up the valley with him. You know that long, narrow sandbar in the river just below the mouth of the upper canyon?”

Grislow nodded.

“That is where we went for the proof. Massingale dipped up a panful of the bar sand, which he asked me to wash out for myself. I did it, and you have the results there in that paper. That bar is comparatively rich placer dirt.”

“Good Lord!” ejaculated the mapmaker. “Comparatively rich, you say?”

—and you washed this spoonful out of a single pan?”

“Keep your head,” said Brouillard coolly. “Massingale explained that I had happened to make a ten-strike; that the bar wasn't any such bonanza as that first result would indicate. I proved that, too, by washing some more of it without getting any more than a few ‘colors.’ But the fact remains: it's placer ground.”

It was at this point that the larger aspect of the fact launched itself upon the hydrographer.

“A gold strike!” he gasped. “And we—we're planning to drown it under two hundred feet of a lake!”

Brouillard's laugh was harsh.

“Don't let the fever get hold of you, Grislow. Don't forget that we are here to carry out the plans of the reclamation service—which are more far-reaching and of a good bit greater consequence than a dozen placer mines. Massingale drove the pe-down good and hard. If I would join in and pull every possible string to hurry the railroad over the range, and keep on pulling them, the secret of the placer bar would remain a secret. Otherwise how, Stephen Massingale, would give it away, publish it, advertise it to the world. You know what that would mean for us, Murray.”

“My Lord! I should say so! We'd have Boomtown-on-the-pike right now, with all the variations! Every white man in the camp would chuck his job in the hollow half of a minute and go to gravel washing!”

“That's it precisely,” Brouillard acquiesced gloomily. “Massingale is a young tough, but he is shrewd enough, when he is sober. He had me dead to rights, and he knew it. You don't want any gold camp starting up here in the bottom of your reservoir,” he said; and I had to admit it.”

Grislow had found a magnifying glass in the drawer of the mapping table, and he was holding it in focus over the small collection of grain gold and nuggets. In the midst of the eager examination he looked up suddenly to say: “Hold on a minute. Why is Steve proposing to give this thing away? Why isn't he working the bar himself?”

“He explained that phase of it, after a fashion—said that placer mining was always more or less of a gamble, and that they had a sure thing of it in the ‘Little Susan.’ Of course, if the thing had to be given away he and his father would avail themselves of their rights as discoverers and take their chance with the crowd for the sake of the ready money they might get out of it. Otherwise they'd be content to let it alone and stick to their legitimate business, which is quartz mining.”

“And to do that successfully they've got to have the railroad. How did you settle it finally?”

“He told me to take a week or two and think about it.”

Grislow was biting the end of his penholder thoughtfully.

“What are you going to do about it, Victor?” he asked at length. “We can't stand for any more chaos than the gods have already doped out for us, can we?”

Brouillard took another long minute at the office window before he said: “What would you do if you were in my place, Murray?”

But at this the mapmaker put up his hands as if to ward off a blow.

“No, you don't!” he laughed. “I refuse to be that kind of a fool. But I'll venture a small prophecy: The golden secret will leak out. And after that, the deluge.”

CHAPTER V
A Fire of Little Sticks

Two days after the arrival of the letter from Washington announcing the approaching invasion of private capital, Brouillard, returning from a horseback trip to the Buckskin, where Anson and Griffith were setting grade stakes for the canal diggers, found a visitor awaiting him in the camp headquarters office.

One glance at the thick-bodied, heavy-faced man chewing an extinct cigar while he made himself comfortable in the only approach to a lounging chair that the office afforded was sufficient to awaken an alert antagonism. The big man introduced himself without taking the trouble to get out of his chair.

“My name is Hosford, and I represent the Niquia Improvement Company as its manager and resident engineer,” said the lounging, shuffling, dead cigar from one corner of his hard-bitten mouth to the other. “You're Brouillard, the government man, I take it?”

“Brouillard, if you please,” was the crisp correction. And then with a careful effacement of the final saving trace of hospitality in tone or manner: “What can we do for you, Mr. Hosford?”

“A good many things, first and last. I'm two or three days ahead of my outfit, and you can put me up somewhere until I get a camp of my own. You've got some sort of an engineers' mess, I take it?”

“We have,” said Brouillard briefly. “You'll make yourself at home with us, of course,” he added, and he tried to say it without making it sound too much like a challenge.

“All right; so much for that part of it,” said the self-invited guest. “Now for the business end of the deal—why don't you sit down?”

Brouillard planted himself behind his desk and began to fill his blackened office pipe, coldly refusing Hosford's tender of a cigar.

“You were speaking of the business matter,” he suggested bluntly.

“Yes. I'd like to go over your plans for the power dam in the upper canyon. If they look good to me I'll adopt them.”

“I am very far from wishing to quarrel with anybody,” said Brouillard, but his tone belied the words. “At the same time, if you think we are going to do your engineering work, or any part of it, for you, you are pretty severely mistaken. Our own job is fully big enough to keep us busy.”

“You're off,” said the big man coolly. “Somebody has bungled in giving you the dope. You want to keep your job, don't you?”

“That is neither here nor there. What we are discussing at present is the department's attitude toward your enterprise. I shall be exceeding my instructions if I make that attitude friendly to the detriment of my own work.”

The new resident manager sat back in his chair and chewed his cigar reflectively, staring up at the log beaming of the office ceiling.

“You're just like all the other government men I've ever had to do business with, Brouillard; pig-headed, obstinate, blind as bats to their own interests. I didn't especially want to begin by knocking you into line, but I guess it'll have to be done. I guess the best way to get you is to send a little wire to Washington. How does that strike you?”

“I haven't the slightest interest in what you may do or fail to do,” said Brouillard.

“But you have made the plans for this power plant, haven't you?”

“Yes; and they are the property of the department. If you want them I'll turn them over to you upon a proper order from headquarters.”

“That's a little more like it. Where did you say I'd find your wire office?”

Dinner Stories

Little George was having luncheon at Mrs. Carey's.

“Wouldn't you like another piece of cake dear?” asked the hostess.

“Yes, I would,” replied George, dubiously, “and I guess I could chew it, but I couldn't swallow it.”

“All is over between us,” said the fair one.

“Oh, say not so,” he pleaded. “I love you more than life itself.”

“No, Harold. You have proved yourself unworthy of my love and I mess, I take it?”

“We have,” said Brouillard briefly. “You'll make yourself at home with

Thankful For Relief Remedy Brought Her

Says Fruitola and Traxo Possesses All the Merit That Is Claimed for It.

After completing the necessary treatment, Mrs. S. S. Cole, Lampasas, Texas, was so well pleased with the results that she wrote the Pinus laboratories as follows: “Fruitola and Traxo are all you claim. It removed a quantity of gallstones and I feel sure it saved my life. I am well now and thankful to you for the great good your medicine has done me.”

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs and one dose is usually sufficient to clearly demonstrate its efficacy. It softens the congested masses, disintegrates the hardened particles that occasion so much suffering and expels the accumulated waste to the great relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has become weakened and run down from constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Jamesville they can be obtained at J. P. Baker, 123 W. Millw. St.

“Then give me back my rings,” he demanded.

“Oh, Harold,” she cried, “if you feel so badly as all that about it I suppose I'll have to give you another chance.”

The youngster had just been told the story of Daniel in the lions' den, and the question had been put to him: “What do you think Daniel did the very first thing when he found he was saved from the lions?”

The child reflected a moment, and then replied: “I suppose he telephoned home to his wife to tell her he was all right.”

“Who was that chap who just said, ‘Hello!’ to you?”

“That's the man who does most of my bill collecting.”

“He wasn't very respectful, considering that you are his boss?”

“Who said I was his boss? That fellow is employed by my creditors!”

“I have here,” said the professor, “a stone which looks like a diamond. How can I determine whether it is genuine?”

“Try to hook it,” suggested a student in the back row.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is a most instantaneous one. They are the result of a scientific determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquors or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquors.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, “biliousness” and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel “lumpy” and “heavy.” Note how they “clear” clouded brain and how they “perk up” the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Want Ad Points the Way to Progress!

Personal Witnessing for Christ

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.
Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT.—Ye shall be witnesses unto me.—Acts 1:8.
A true witness delivereth souls.—Prov. 14:35.

These Scriptures set before us the reason that true Christians, saved men and women, are left on the earth. If "to depart and be with Christ is far better," as Paul wrote the Philippians, the wonder is that Christ who loved his people well enough to die for them, did not take them to be with him in heaven as soon as he saved them, as soon as they were regenerated by his Holy Spirit. In the same letter Paul said the reason his enemies were not allowed to put him to death was that his remaining in the flesh was more needful for the service Christ had for him to do, and doubtless this is true of all Christians.

Now, what is that service? The text tells us that it is to witness for Jesus Christ, and with the object of delivering, that is, saving souls.

There are many kinds of service Christians ought to do for their fellow men, and so far as our observation goes there is a fairly generous and intelligent disposition on their part to do them. The emphasis laid upon "social service" has wrought wonders in stirring professing Christians to perform their obligations to society in a spirit of unselfishness, and all classes are feeling the benefit. We are all grateful for this, and trust the pressure may not be released, and that the pulpit and the religious press may continue that instruction and exhortation we all need to perform our duty.

But two thoughts occur to us, and one is that we may engage in that kind of service without ever bearing witness specifically to Jesus Christ, and the other, that after we have rendered that service to our fellow men they may still remain ignorant of the Gospel and "dead in trespasses and sins."

These things are true because social service of certain kinds is, even at its highest level, only for the betterment of earthly conditions and takes no cognizance of a life beyond. Men and women of the world with kindly hearts may engage in it, who themselves are quite ignorant of the new life in Christ Jesus, and whose motives are merely humanitarian. Indeed the most selfish principles may make us diligent in some forms of social service, for as we are bettering the conditions of those around us we are bettering our own.

Can we not easily see that this necessitates no mention of Jesus Christ, and especially no mention of him in that capacity which most truly glorifies him, namely, his redemption of human kind by his death upon the cross? You meet a beggar, let us say, and you give him a nickel or a dime for a cupful of coffee and a night's lodging, and he thanks you for it. That is, he thanks you for it, and there the transaction ends.

But what is it that stirs you to respond to his appeal, simply the desire to be rid of him or a feeling of sympathy for his need. But it may be something else. It may be the love of your Savior in you, and for you, that prompts the gift, and if so, should not the beggar be told of it that he, the real giver, may receive the thanks?

Carry out this thought in other form of social service and discover where it leads. You will never be satisfied to do kind things for men without letting them know in some way that it is Christ in you that is doing it.

But suppose we go further. You may be engaged in service more strictly Christian, and yet be negligent of your supreme obligation to win souls to Christ. Sunday school teachers are often lacking in desire and ability to engage in personal evangelism, and hence boys and girls, and young men and young women remain in their classes year in and year out, without being moved to cross the line from darkness to light, from death to life. There are ministers greatly lacking in the same regard and worse than all, Christian parents who never think of dealing personally with their children on the subject of their conversion to and salvation by Christ. Is not this awful to contemplate?

Let this message close with a practical suggestion. Is there an evangelistic meeting now in progress not very far away? What a splendid opportunity for you to do personal evangelism, to witness for Jesus Christ! When the evangelist calls for personal workers volunteer your service and begin in earnest to work for souls.

And if you are too timid or too ignorant for the Gospel to do that, here is something else you can do. You can invite some unsaved friend or acquaintance to go with you to the meeting, that someone else may labor with him there.

Second Quarter. Lesson III. Acts X. 24-33:44-48. April 16, 1916.

THE GOSPEL FOR THE GENTILES.

When that centurion of the proud Cornelian family received this military assignment, he may have commiserated the ill-luck that cast his lot among the turbulent Jews. But military service among the Judean hills was God's way for him into the kingdom. His moral earnestness is put to severe test. He is asked to send for a Galilean peasant amid the disgusting sights of a tanner's house, and from such an uncanny source obtain instruction concerning his supreme interests. The seeker shows his sincerity by not caviling. Scarcely is the angel gone before his trusty servants are on their way to his imperative need of preparation for his share in the transaction as the Roman. Racial and religious prejudices were to be overcome. Peter proved as morally earnest as Cornelius, and was soon on his way to Caesarea, alert for the faintest hint of the Divine will. Cornelius was not playing his investigations in either Hebrewism or Christianity clandestinely or selfishly. When he had obtained a sure footing upon some new height, he was not content until he had drawn as many of his friends as possible up to his own altitude. He has a house full of them now. They are sitting in subdued expectancy. Cornelius describes their state of mind when he says: "Now, therefore, are we all here present before God to hear all things that are commanded thee of God?" Peter, in his exordium, confesses his late perception of what was always true, that God was not so swayed by the mere accidents of birth and environment but only in response to personal qualities of heart will bestow His favor. He rehearses the facts of gospel history. It is likely we have here but the faintest outline of a sermon that may have consumed considerable time in its delivery. As Peter at length reached the very core of the gospel, the forgiveness of sins through the dear and trusted, receive at once gift and giver. Instantly there is a sight which Peter could not fail to recognize. The radiant Shemkinah is there, it separates into tongues, one of which rests upon each Gentile. "The Pentecost of the Gentiles" is come. The proverb, "What God does, is well done," never had a better exemplification than in the manner in which Providence took to rid the Church of its prejudices, break down "the middle wall of partition," and prepare for the unrestricted admission of the Gentile. Paul was no favorite of the Jewish-Christian faction. They suspected, disliked him. Had he been forward at this time in this matter, schism would have been inevitable. Peter, on the other hand—the true "apostle of the circumcision," most authoritative, above suspicion of any possibility of betraying Judaism—to Peter the all-significant vision came. Again the conspicuous candidate for full and immediate admission into the Christian Church without submission to the Hebrew rite was admirably chosen—a man at once open-hearted and openhanded; "of good report among all the nation of the Jews;" so much of a Jew and so much of a Gentile as to form a connecting link between both. The place where this scene was enacted was also fully chosen. Caesarea, the superb citadel of Gentileism. The time, too, was apt. The ten years of comparatively fruitless toil among the Gentiles must have begun to convince the Church that the world would never accept the gospel plus Judaism, circumcision, and all. Thus Providence takes up the irrepressible and perplexing problem of the status of the Gentile toward Judaism. He gives an unmistakable formula for its solution in every instance. As Cornelius and his companions, uncircumcised Gentiles, had received a Pentecostal effusion precisely like that which the Jewish disciples had received, the distinction of Jew and Gentile was evidently abolished. Henceforth it was undoubtedly the Divine will that the Gentile should become a Christian without first becoming a Jew. So the partition melted away.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Cornelius is "a lily on a dunghill" under shadow of a heathen temple in service of a pagan emperor and in the army. What an environment! For all that, he is a pious man; reveres God, is benevolent and prayerful. Military life is not necessarily inimical to personal piety. The names of Havlock, Gardner, Gordon, Howard and Robert E. Lee prove it. Every doctrine and point of polity in Christianity has been evolved in the storm of debate. Asperity is to be regretted, but not the clash of thought. Even fierce discussion is to be preferred to the calm of the cemetery. This thrilling scene is a vision to us as well as to the apostle of old. It is a peep behind the impenetrable curtain. We see the hand of a wonder-working Providence producing a conjunction with astronomical precision, yet never intruding upon that ultimate element of selfhood, the human will. By inference, the same Providence moves today in individual, ecclesiastical, national life. We may well be chary of human additions to the gospel. Multiplied ecclesiastical formulas squint toward Judaism. Venerable usages, historically dear though they be, must be discarded when found effete. Conceal the condition of the world had Peter had no vision at Joppa, or had he been disobedient to it. Christianity, as preached by Jewish-Christian apostles, would have been a hyphenated religion, unacceptable to either Jew or Gentile, or it would have commenced with schism, of a Pauline and a Petrine Church. Some stages in the evolution of Peter's character are apparent. He has begun to throw off the tentacles of the ceremonial law, else he would not have lodged with a tanner. Tanneries and corpses were named together as things to be shunned. Again, Peter's rashness is gone. Instead of starting off pell mell for Caesarea, he lodged the messengers over night and then took reliable witnesses to be with him in the fateful interview.

GOOD PRAYER-MEETINGS AND HOW TO HAVE THEM.

"Prayer-meeting! The stupid place!" That is what a minister once overheard a woman exclaim. The same day he heard a workman laying a carpet, say "I like to think this is the evening for prayer-meeting. I love it so much! It makes me forget I am tired." Opposite points of vision give opposite estimates and feelings. If one comes reluctantly and in censorious mood, the probability is strong that the service will be found "stupid"; but if one comes joyfully, as to the communion with saints, making real the fellowship of believers and confidently anticipating as the supreme advantage, the Master's presence according to promise; to such an one it is a joy and refreshment. In the final analysis one gets out of the prayer-meeting what he brings to it, just as he gets out of the sublime and beautiful what he brings to them. Ruskin saw in one of Turner's sunsets what the dull and emotionless observer had never seen. So in the glow of a prayer-meeting the devout soul may see that most radiant vision of faith, the transfigured Christ, a sight that brings him to the maximum of consecration, gladness and rapture. At the foot of the Mount of Transfiguration an extreme and stubborn case of human suffering confronted those who were returning from that prayer-meeting, for the matching of which its very glow prepared them.

Spare Yourself the Expense of a Trip to Chicago

A Lyon & Healy Envoy Will Be Here For Two Weeks

Next Saturday a special commissioner of Lyon & Healy will arrive, delegated to give the citizens of Janesville and vicinity any assistance they may need in purchasing a piano.

For Two Weeks a Large Stock of Carefully Selected Pianos will be on display but for no longer than two weeks. It will be a fine, fresh stock, larger than local dealers would order in any one shipment, and will present choice of a grade ranging from the medium to the very best.

When you go to Chicago to purchase, it is primarily for the advantage of selection from a large stock. You will have this same opportunity of selection for fourteen days in Janesville under much more favorable conditions. Lyon & Healy will make it possible for you to examine perhaps a finer lot of pianos than has ever before graced the floors of any Janesville warerooms.

Instruments Will Be Sold at Fixed Prices

One reason why Lyon & Healy Pianos and Player-Pianos are standard is because they are known the world over to be available only at fixed retail prices. You will therefore be spared the disreputable stratagem of having the prices raised sufficiently high to make possible the statement to you that on account of your influence as a citizen of Janesville you will be the recipient of a discount of so and so much. The prices during the sale will be identical with those at which you could buy Lyon & Healy pianos in the warerooms of Lyon & Healy, Chicago.

The Pianos and Players Will All Be Paragons of Excellence

The prettiest figured cases, the most beautiful finish and the purest tone,—points which characterize Lyon & Healy pianos,—will distinguish this stock of goods. The best of one thousand instruments in the Lyon & Healy factory will be concentrated in this lot.
